There is a sound of hammering by night, and the awning covered soda-fountain lineth the streets of the city

All nature seems to be glad, and the young man goeth to church with the maiden—for he hath invested his sav ings in a new plug

But I say unto you, the day of reck oning is nigh at hand

The smiling graduate of medicine steppeth shroad seeking whom he may devour, and the newly-fledged legal practitioner hireth an office in the eighth And behold ' the editor sitteth at his

Nervously he fidgeteth in his chair and savagely fingereth his foot stool Gayly cometh the smiling poet to the thresheld, and behold there us a scene of great slaughter and devastation. Yes, very the editor smileth in his exceeding joy for he hath fought a good Living in Quiet.

A rule for living happily with others is to avoid having stock subjects for disputation. It mostly happens, when people live much together, they have come to have certain set topics, around which, from frequent dispute, there is such a growth of angry words, mortified vanity, and the like, that the original subject of difference becomes a standing subject for quarrel, and there is a tendency in all minor dispules to drift down to it. Again, t people wish to live well together, they must not hold too much to logic, and suppose that everything is to be settled by sufficient reason. Dr. Johnson saw this clearly with regard to married people when he said. "Wretched would be the pair, above all names of wretchedness, who should be doomed to adjust by reason, every morning, all the minute detail of the domestic day." But the application should be much more general than he made it. and nothing that is worth them. lawyers or two politicians go on contending, and that there is no end of one-sided reasoning on any subject, we shall not feel sure that such contention is the best mode of arriving at truth But certainly it is not the way to arrive at good temper.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN: This Territory, one of the last to be developed, are no farmers' teams coming in town was one of the first to be discovered from every direction here, as you of the and occupied by Europeans. While states are used to see; consequently all the entire Atlantic seaboard was in the possession of the Indian, the Spaniards were ascending the Rio Grande, sub bridles and halters are unknown. A verting a civilization far superior to that of the aborigines of New England, founding settlements more ancient than those of Plymouth or St. Augustine, and building churches older than the oldest in Massachusetts or Virginia. Royal officers issued in New Mexico decrees in the name of the King of Spain before Bradford and Carver were born, and built on the public Plaza of Santa Fe, a palace still standing, which ante dates every other vestige of royalty in the land. If priority of settlement were of itself sufficient to command respect New Mexico might challenge it from every State in the Union. The climate, soil and production of this Territory are truly wonderful. Tur Wonders of That Territory. SANTA FE, N. M., March 22, 1880. with their hogs, they know how it is themselves; second, if the Mexicans did not take them the wolves would. There is another animal here, unknown to the states, that deserves special mention on account of the important part he plays in the business part of the country-el burro, I mean. There burros, given a pack saddle no other equipment is required. Such things as bridled burro is as unusual as a Dr Mary Walker, and as comical, too. The sacks in which grain is brought to market are made of dry hides, and hold two and a half bushels each, this being a Mexican measure called a fenega. If 300 bushels of wheat are to come to market, sixty burros are brought out and each loaded with two sacks, or five bushels, and are then driven like a flock of geese or sheep. If the distance is too great to be made in a day, the burros are allowed to pick what they can find at night, but are never fed anything. Here in Santa Fe they find excellent picking, ashes, tin cans and shavings in abundance. If they don't eat these things no one knows what they do winter on, for their owners never store a spear of fodder or ear of corn for their sustenance. Wood and corn fodder, fastened to the packsaddle by raw-hide ropes, are brought in the same way grain is. Apricots, apples, pears, grapes, peaches and mel-one are carried in boxes on these patient little creatures.

It is amusing to see a herd of burros being loaded with heavy bales of mernear the pack; a Mexican then catches hes like a cow, waiting for his load. When the burden is thrown-across him, the driver, serzing the animal by the tail shouts, and beats with one hand self from the oppression of the majoras if the back bones must pull out.

The figure 16 at the corner of this page admonishes me that my communication is becoming prolix, without having said half I wished, but as I haven't our own column to fill to day, it does not make so much difference-to me.

You've heard of the mines at Cerrilstock is never housed, the summers ios, of course. They are twenty miles in most parts are cool, the salubrity from Santa Fe. Well, if you want to know anything more about the mines, write to some one interested in them, for I am only going to speak of the scenery near them. Back a mile or two from where the claims are all staked off, I stumbled upon an arroya (dry creek). Following this a mile or more I came out upon a valley, broad and level, beautiful as any of the famous valleys of Colorado. Pines covered the mountain sides, while immense cottonwoods were scattered over the valleys. The stillness was almost oppressive. Not a living object but my horse and myself were in sight. Delighted, I thought that I had at last found an unexplored spot, and that I was the first white man to look upon the beauties of the place, but my joy was shortlived and I was undeceived by discerning the evidence of American civilization in the shape of Anheuser's beer bottles. Then like Solomon, I thought there was nothing new under the sun, and no place you can go but some enterprising Vankee has been there before you. T. O. SVITH.

THE SENATE.

Another Day of Bitter vate reception to Messrs Conking, Lo-Debate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 1.-The resolution for the election of Senate officers was laid before the Senate as unfinished business.

A motion to go into executive ses sion was made by Mr. Pendleton, which was defeated, yeas 22, nays 26.

Mr. Lamar said the present attitude of the Senate was an extraordinary one, and one without a precedent in the history of the country. The announcement has been made that the business which the Senate had been called to transact should not be transacted until the present officers were deposed and others elected. If the present report were true, the thirty-eight Republican Senators intended to keep the body in its present position until their object was accomplished. Alluding to the remark of Mr. Hoar, that the announcement on the Democratic side, that it would meet endurance with endurance, contained the very essence of treason, and revolution, he said that if that were true, it would devolve a terrible responsibility on the Democratic side. What was the reason i He asked them to tell it; he defied them to announce it; he taunted them to the avowal of it.

At this point a message was received from the President, and Mr. Lamar yielded to a motion to go into executive ession, which motion was rejected.

WASHINGTON, D. [C., April 1.—The complexion of the debate in the Senate to-day does not favor the theory of an early return to executive business. A two hours' speech from Mr. Lamar upon the Sepatorial situation and the status of Southern politics was listened to by full galleries. It was followed by Mr. Hoar's reply on Southern repudiation, particularly on Democratic repudiation in Mississippi. This brought out Mr. George and Mr. Dawes and the whole subject. Eugene Hale took a hand, elaborating the difference between the Maine and the Mississippi plan of self-government. Thus the afternoon was consumed in that fruitful theme. The Duchess of Edinburgh fainted at once, and for some hours her condition was alarming. But she summoned courage to start for Russia that evening with her husband and poor young Alexis, who (if we may credit the rumors) has been lately started on a tour in search of a wife. As the "royal and imperial party," as the English journals obsequiously call it, sped across the channel and over the bleak lands of northern France, in the cold March moonlight, its members must have indulged in some bitter reflections on the vanity of human greatness. The unhappy daughter, who was in St. Petersburg when the Winter Palace explosion occurred, has ever since that time been firmly convinced that the Czar would die a violent death. utions The following were adopted

Whereas, in accordance with the laws givering the duration of mans natural life. Brother Albert Pavison has been removed from our midst through the instrumentality of disease.

Resolved, That we, the members of Mt Zion Lodge, I O G T deeply deplore the loss which our order and the cause of temperance has austained by the decease of our worthy brother, who by his deportment in lodge room and elsewhere so truly exemplified the principles and reachings of our order.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereeted family the father, the mother the brothers and sisters of the deceased, out warm set sympathies in the affections which they are called to endure by reason of the separation which has taken place in the home circle by destin of a son and beother who was just building into manbood, and but recently was flushed with all the vigor of health.

Resolved, That the family be presented with a copy of these resolutions, and also to the Decatur papers for publication.

A Stranger's Mistake. Wall Street News

A few days ago a western mer-chant who wanted to do some sight seeing and buy his fall stock at the same time, entered a dry goods jobbing house on Broadway, and accosted the first person he met with, "Are you the proprietor here " 'Not exactly the proprietor," was the reply. "At present I am acting as shipping clerk, but I am cutting my cards for a partnership next year by organizing noon prayer-meetings in the basement."

The stranger passed on to a very important personage with a diamond pin, and asked "Are you the head of the house "

"Well, no, I can't say as I am at present, but I have hopes of a partnership in January. I'm only one of the travelers just now, but I am laying for a $200 pew in an uptown church, and that will mean a quarter interest in less than six months."

The next man had his feet up, his in short a present the second of the

"Me? Well, I may run it very oon. At present I am the bookkeeper, but I am expecting to get into a church choir with the old man's darling and become an equal partner here.'

The stranger was determined not to make another mistake. He walked around until he found a man with his coat off and busy with a rase of goods, and he said to him

"The porters are kept busy in here, I sec."

"Yes." was the brief reply. "But I suppose you are planning to invest in a gospel hymn-book and sing the old man out of an
